

Abstract

Provided is a magnetic resonance imager capable of efficiently suppressing artifacts in radial scanning that is short of the number of echoes.

Part of unmeasured echoes is measured as a reference echo. An estimation coefficient is calculated using echoes adjoining the reference echo, and used to estimate the unmeasured echoes.